

‘HOW MUCH IS ENOUGH?’

Professor Lord Robert Skidelsky

Lord Skidelsky is Emeritus Professor of Political Economy at the University of Warwick. He is a distinguished economic historian. His three volume biography of the economist John Maynard Keynes (1983, 1992, 2000) received numerous prizes, including the Lionel Gelber Prize for International Relations and the Council on Foreign Relations Prize for International Relations.

In 1930, the great economist Keynes predicted that while income would rise, working hours would be no more than 15 hours per week over the next century. What has been witnessed is the opposite. The epidemic extension of working hours and difficulty in maintaining work-life balance raises the question of the point of income and leisure satisfaction. ‘How much is enough?’, co-authored with his son and philosopher, Dr. Edward Skidelsky, is a rare quest of deep intelligence into what makes a good life and what is the true value of money in the age of consumerism.

This event is co-organised by between Young Scholars Initiative (of Institute for New Economic Thinking), Greenwich Political Economy Research Centre (of University of Greenwich) and Foundation for European Progressive Studies (FEPS).
